Table of Contents

Articles:

Structure leads to function: An integrated biophysical approach to teaching a biochemistry laboratory ........................................3
Peter deLannoy, LaHoma M. Easterwood, Kimberly Bynote & Stanley Smith

Students Teaching Students: Habitat Tours, An Outdoor Lab Exercise .................................................................10
Thomas A. Davis

Taking a Second Look: Investigating Biology With Visual Datasets .................................................................13
Ethel D. Stanley

News & Views:
Lifetime Award: Sister Marion R. Johnson, RSM .................................................................18

Lists, Leadership and Learning: Organizing an Effective AMCBT Meeting .................................................................19
Thomas A. Davis

1997 AMCBT Annual Meeting to be held at Beloit College .................................................................17

Call for Presentations for 41st AMCBT Annual Meeting ................................................................. inside front cover

Announcements .........................................................................................................................9, 12, 24

AMCBT Membership Application Form ...............................................................................inside back cover

AMCBT on the World Wide Web .......................................................................................back cover

Cover Illustration:
This watercolor of a salticid spider, Trite planniceps, was painted by Micah Stanley, an art student at Parkland Community College in Champaign, Illinois.